DRAPER KILLS LABOR'S PET MEASURE

Frank L. Dean, private secretary to Governor Eben S. Draper, at 11:20 to-day filed in the office of Clerk Kimball of the House of Representatives a sealed message to the House from the Governor.

Although no official statement is issued, no secret is made of the fact that the message is a veto of the eight-hour bill for State employes. The message will be opened when the House convenes at 1 p. m. on Monday.

This bill was passed by both branches of the State Legislature by overwhelming majorities. In the Senate even those members who were considered to be labor's worst enemies voted for it.

The measure is almost an exact copy of the United States government eight-hour law. It provides that more than eight hours a day of labor of State work shall be illegal and shall constitute an offence when such work is being carried on by a contractor.

Certain necessary overtime work such as that in kitchens, dininghrooms and on the farms of State institutions, are made exceptions in the bill to its general provision of an eight-hour day.

Veto Was Foretold.

The Governor's message, it is stated on good authority, points out as especially objectionable to the Chief Executive, section 5, of the bill, which provides that the fact that when an employe has been found to be working more than eight hours a day this shall be taken as prima facie evidence that the law has been violated.

Governor Draper, last Thursday, summoned to his office the labor men in the State Legislature and the representatives of labor in the lobby and plainly told them that he would veto the eight-hour measure unless they had it recalled and altered this section 5 which was objectionable to him.

On Thursday night a meeting of labor men from all over the State and every member of the Legislature connected with organized labor, met in Wells Memorial building. The Governor's ultimatum regarding his position on the eight-hour measure was thoroughly discussed.

After an exhaustive review of the situation, the labor men decided that they would stand or fall with the eight-hour bill in its present form.

Yesterday the representatives of labor waited on Governor Draper in his office in the State House and gave him their final answer. He told them that he would consider the matter further.

A Blank Slate for Labor.

The eight-hour bill vetoed Governor Draper last Monday at 4:50 p. m. Under the law he had until 4:50 o'clock this afternoon in which either to veto or to sign the bill.

The news that Governor Draper had vetoed the eight-hour law spread like wildfire through the State House and through political and labor circles in Boston. It was received with consternation in the circles of both organized labor and among the Republican politicians who remember former Governor John L. Bates's veto of the overtime factory bill and his fate at the succeeding election.

This bill was the only bone which organized labor had received from this year's Legislature. The veto to-day gives labor a blank slate this year, so far as recognition form the State administration is concerned.

The eight-hour bill was passed by the House of Representatives on April 26 with out division and without roll call. On May 6 the Senate passed the measure by a vote of 23 to 11.

Representative Thomas J. Fay of West Boston, introduced the measure. It was supplemented with a petition by the State Federation of the American Federation of Labor.

The bill was referred to the Legislative Committee on Labor on February 1. One public hearing was given by the committee on March 2. It was favorably reported by the Committee on Labor of the Legislature on March 30. House Chairman Wetherbee of Lynn and Representative Butterick of Sterling were the dissenters.

Those members of the Committee on Labor who favored the passage of the bill were Senators Ross of New Bedford, Bird of Milford and Mahoney of Hingham, and Representatives Hall, Moore, of Duxbury, Kendrick, Lewis, Parks and Davies.

PROKOS'S WIFE IN DEATH LEAP INTO CANAL

LOWELL, May 15.—Mrs. Rosie Prokos, wife of John Prokos, the wrestler, committed suicide to-day, while in the custody of a Manchester, N. H., police inspector, by hurling herself from the Thorndike street bridge into the canal. She sank immediately, and her body was recovered an hour later.

The woman was being taken to Manchester to answer to a charge of jumping her bail bond, when she made the successful and sensational attempt to end her life.

She was about half-way across the bridge, with Inspector Clifton B. Hildreth of the Manchester police about twenty-five feet behind, when she suddenly darted to the bridge fence, vaulted it with the alertness of an athlete and leaped into the canal.

Prokos was arrested a short time ago for obtaining money under false pretenses and was sentenced to the Concord jail. He is a prisoner there now.

CATCHEL BALL'S LEAVE OF ABSENCE

J. Chandler Ball, one of the catchers of the Boston Nationals, entered the office of President Dovey without making much noise to-day. He took off his hat and timidly approached the baseball magnate's desk.

"Won't you take a chair?" enquired Colonel Dovey.

Mr. Ball quietly sat down.

"What can I do for you?" asked the president.

"Why—er—I—uhem! I—er, well, you see, I—er—well, the trouble is—that is to say there's no trouble at all, but I—er—I want to know if you—er— will give me a few wdays' leave of absence," said the ball player with much hesitation.

"On what grounds?" inquired the magnate, frigidly.

"On the grounds—er—of—of—of—matrimony. Want to get married."

Colonel Dovey stuck out his hand.

"Sure thing!" he exclaimed cheerfully. "Why didn't you say so in the first place. Take as many days as you like. Have a cigar."

"Thank you," said the ball player, as he made a rush for the door.

Ball has kept his secret under his hat and Mr. Dovey doesn't know the name of his intended bride.

Mrs. Frances Sylvia of Fall River Weeps as She Reclaims Child Abandoned on Street a Week Ago.

"Baby Blue Eyes," the two-and-one-half-year-old boy who was abandoned in the street last Saturday morning in Boston, found his mother to-day.

The mother of the child is Frances Sylvia of Fall River. She is about twenty years of age. She is the daughter of Mrs. Hattie Sylvia. The mother and daughter came from Fall River to-day, reaching the city shortly before noon, and went directly to the rooms of the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Children at No. 43 Mt. Vernon street. They asked to see the baby.

Matron Wilson told them that "Baby Blue Eyes" was upstairs. She notified Agent Carter, who has been trying to clear the mystery that surrounded the lost child. Mr. Carter took the two women upstairs, and in a moment the little tow-haired, blue-eyed child was in his mother's arms. Both the mother and grandmother of the baby were greatly affected by the meeting and were on the verge of hysteria.

"This is My Baby."

"This is my baby," declared Frances Sylvia.

"Yes, it is our child," said her mother. "We did not believe that the lost baby in Boston was Adelbert. We thought that the boy was being cared for by Mrs. Smith of Nashua, N. H. The last time I saw him was when I turned him over to her.

"Neither one of us took the baby away from Mrs. Hardy to Charlestown last Saturday morning. We knew absolutely about its being brought to Boston and abandoned in the street.

"We are ready to take care of the baby now. We want to take him home. We are amply able to care for him, and never mount that he should be treated harshly in any way."

Mrs. Sylvia and the mother of the baby were told that the court would now have to pass upon the custody of the child, because a warrant had been issued to-day charging that the baby was a neglected child. The baby will be taken into the Juvenile Court on Monday, probably, when the Judge will make such disposition of him as he thinks proper.

The police of Boston and Fall River today took steps to ascertain who plundered the now-famous "Baby Blue Eyes."

It has been learned that after the baby was taken from the home of Mrs. Ross Niles last April, the little fellow was placed with Mrs. Marguerite Smith, a nurse of Nashua, N. H. She had the baby about two weeks and then turned it over to Mrs. Sadie Hardy, the transfer being at Lowell as Mrs. Hardy has claimed.

At her home in Charlestown Mrs. Sadie Hardy, in the presence of her mother, brother and sister-in-law, told the BOSTON AMERICAN of her three weeks' experience with "Baby Blue Eyes." She said:

"I am the most unfortunate woman in the world with respect to children. Both

15-YEAR-OLD GIRL KIDNAPS BABY SISTER

Coming alone from New York, with plenty of money for her needs, fifteen-year-old Mary Cryan, formerly of East Saugus, to-day successfully kidnapped her four-year-old sister, Annie Cryan, from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Hardiman of East Saugus and fled back to New York with her charge.

The fifteen-year-old girl displayed remarkable self-possession and intelligence in carrying out her plan. She consulted a lawyer in Lynn as to her legal rights in the case, hired a livery hitch for the kidnapping, consummated the taking of her little sister, paid her bills in Lynn and hustled to Boston and the first New York express, as though this was part of the daily routine of young girls of the twentieth century.

There are six of the Cryan children. Their mother is dead. The father is in Danvers Insane Asylum. When the mother died the children were distributed among relatives. The father took Annie and boarded with the Hardimans in East Saugus. When the father was committed to Danvers little Annie was kept at the Hardimans.

Eleven-year-old Johnny Cryan was put in a home in Salem. Last Monday he ran away from there and sought shelter with one of his brothers who was being brought up in the home of Mrs. Mary O'Donnell of No. 231 South Common street, Lynn.

There he an aunt of the children who is housekeeper at the Roman Catholic rectory in Beachmont. Little Johnny was turned over to this aunt.

Meanwhile fifteen-year-old Mary, who had been living in New York with another aunt, the wife of a Manhattan policeman, heard about Johnny. She thought she would come to Lynn and look up the children. She arrived in Lynn Thursday. She heard that the Hardimans in East Saugus had made legal claim to four-year-old Annie. Mary resolved to take Annie back to New York with her. She consulted Attorney Edward J. Coughlin of Lynn. It is said that Attorney Coughlin found out that the Hardimans had no legal claim to Annie.

To-day Mary drove to East Saugus, found that Mr. and Mrs. Hardiman were away from home, went to the house and took Annie away. She left for New York this afternoon.

CLARENCE CHASE IS WANTED

Police in Autos Hunt for Man Seen with Slain Girl, but Who Disappeared Last Monday.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., May 15.—A big squad of police inspectors and plain clothes men under Deputy Chief Inspector Nickerson is scouring the suburbs of Auburn and Cranston in automobiles and wagons to-day to locate Clarence Chase, the Auburn barber. They wish to talk with Chase about the murder of Laura E. Register, the young woman who was strangled to death in the Jewish cemetery, near the Cranston line, last Monday night.

Late last night the police received considerable information from Miss Helen Jordan, an employe at the D. & W. Fuse Works, where Miss Register was employed. Miss Jordan is said to have given the police new information about the murdered girl's friends. It is known that Chase admired Laura Rogester greatly.

Chase has not been seen at his Auburn barber shop since last Saturday, two days before the murder. He is about the only one of the girl's friends who has not been interviewed by the officers.

Coincident with their information from Miss Jordan the police received another tip to the effect that Chase was seen on Reservoir road, near the scene of the murder, at 6 o'clock last Monday afternoon. That was only a few hours before the time of the crime.

In Pursuit of Chase.

While they were digesting this information the police received another tip to-day that Chase was still somewhere in Auburn or in Cranston. They acted on this last tip immediately and started for those suburbs.

Captain Peter Cannon of Station No. 7 and a squad of plainclothes men hurried out from their station at 7 o'clock to-day to Auburn. They were back in two hours, but started out again for the same locality.

At the same time another detail went in automobiles from police headquarters, the squad including Inspectors Moynihan, Haran, Ahearn and Godfrey and Deputy Chief Inspector Nickerson, who was in charge. They went to Auburn and Cranston. The fact that they headed for the same territory and concentrated their efforts on a comparatively small range of ground was regarded as especially significant. This is the first time in the case that such wholesale effort has been made to locate individuals. This shows how exceedingly important the police regard the latest clue.

Were Close Friends.

Chase's barber shop is at No. 82 Beck with street, Auburn. He has known the girl for many years. She invited him among other guests, to a musicale. Chase is a singer of some local repute. At her home he was presented to her relatives and friends.

All last week Miss Register met

M'CULLOUGH COUSEL HITS FINANCE BOARD

Denouncing what he alleged to be attempts by the government to intimidate the Jurors, Attorney Feeney opened his argument for Leo F. McCullough in the Superior Criminal Court to-day, where the former president of the Common Council and James T. Cassidy are charged with conspiracy to defraud the city of $200 in the purchase of fire reports.

He declared that Clerk O'Kane of the Common Council has been slightingly treated by the District Attorney because O'Kane, who knew McCullough's signature, had declared that the signature on the bill in evidence was not that of McCullough. He clared that the government had in the courtroom during the trial a handwriting expert, but had not put him on the stand for the reason which took its place to the jury. The lawyer with least referred to City Auditor Mitchell as "a bluff, who has been getting by, preventing Crocker of the Finance Commission and Sughrue and Cole of his own department, and it was not until I gave him a real cross-examination that he fled out of Hiltop. He is the true light. Cover up everything, but until McCullough, has been the cry."

"There are a few crowd to be in with if you are 'in right,' but in this case it's protect Cole, against whom the Finance Commission have stuff, and put the knife into McCullough. Cole came here and told the truth then Mudge, the Finance Commission stenographer, is a liar, and if Mudge tells the truth then Cole is a liar, and they are both government witnesses.

Scores Finance Commission.

"When Nathan Matthews goes out for a fellow he's out for him—he's out for his side.

"Perhaps if the members of the Finance Commission were here as witnesses I could show you why they instigate this criminal proceeding. But they are not here. Why aren't they?

"I'd give a good deal to have those fellows here to give them a dose of their own medicine.

"Why was McCullough summoned to appear before the Finance Commission? I'll tell you gentlemen—it was because he attacked this band of which Sughrue and

BIG CROWD OUT FOR DOVES OPENING GAME WITH CARDINALS

Fans flocked to the Columbus avenue grounds this afternoon for the opening game between the St. Louis Cardinals and the Doves. Bresnahan's crowd looked like a good proposition for the locals and the weather man did his share to make the holiday pleasant.

The Red Sox in the lair of the Detroit Tigers did not have such an easy outlook. Nevertheless, the Lake team got a great reception from Detroit enthusiasts.

SOUTH END GROUNDS, May 15.—It was the first clash of the season between the lowly St. Louis Cardinals and the ambitious Doves, and a good-sized Saturday crowd turned out to see the fun. Big Mike Bowerman figured the visitors in the "Easy Mark" column, but Roger Bresnahan was of the opinion that his former side partner had another guess coming.

Bresnahan, who saw the game from the grand stand while working out little pugilistic inflicted by Acting President Snyder, of the National League, gave out the following information between cigar puffs:

"From our standing in the percentage column one would think that we could not play the national game at all, but the fact is we put up a pretty lively exhibition and will make the other clubs work. We received a couple of good drubbings over in the Trolley Dodger camp, but that has not dampened our hopes of smearing it on the Doves, and we will start from the very first inning to send the scouts farther down the percentage column.

"My pitchers have been in fairly good health and are working O. K. Just at present I am out of the game owing to a little suspension I drew from Acting President Heydler, but I will be back with all the war paint on in Monday's contest."

BENNETT PARK, Detroit, May 15.—With clear weather and a gentle breeze to make conditions delightful, the local fans poured into the grounds this afternoon to see the much-heralded Red Sox, otherwise known as the "Speed Boys," tackle the Detroit Tigers in the first game of the series.

The two teams are leading the American League race, and the way the Bostons cleaned up at Cleveland shows they know how to play ball. There is slight chance that they will be able to displace the Tigers for the leadership, as they would have to take four straight to do it, but Manager Jennings realized that his men could take no chances with the Red Sox and told them to play their best to-day.

A campaign of Southpaws in the series with the Tigers is the plan of Manager Fred Lake of the Boston Red Sox. If it succeeds, it will be an experiment which will be in order every time the Tigers and Red Sox hook up for a series.

"There are two or three clubs in this league that are more than usually susceptible to left handed pitchers," he said.

"Detroit is one of them. Plank and White and Waddel have always had the Tigers puzzled, and last year Burchell could beat them any time he had control and good support. This year I am going to use Walters and Burchell in every series we face the Tigers, if they show me they are right.

"The Tigers admit they do not like the prospect and on the champions bench yesterday the process of warming up Burchell and Walters was the occasion of sarcastic comments.

U. S. WARSHIPS REACH TURKEY TO PROTECT CITIZENS, STOP RIOTS

MERSINA, Asiatic Turkey, May 15.—The American cruiser North Carolina has arrived here and the American missionaries and all Americans here express profoundest joy and relief that American interests are now under protection of our flag and guns.

The cruiser Montana and the Tacoma, which came across the Atlantic with the North Carolina, are headed for Alexandretta.

WASHINGTON, May 15.—The arrival of the American armored cruisers in the Far East puts the United States in position of dealing directly with the Turkish Government. Several cases, involving the payment of indemnity and the giving of assurances of peace, were discussed at the Cabinet meeting. This government proposes to show a strong arm hand in the instances of the death of American citizens and the recurring danger from Turkish outbreaks to American colleges and schools in Asia Minor.

As the armored cruiser Montana is to be at Alexandretta by Sunday the United States will be fairly well represented, and they are to be joined by the cruiser New York.

CONSTANTINOPLE, May 15.—W. H. Donohoe, special correspondent of the AMERICAN, thus describes the swift, retributive justice meted out to thirteen Turkish soldiers guilty of murder in the revolt of the reactionaries on April 13.

Five triangular gallows, roughly bolted together, were erected in a line, and to them the condemned were brought under escort at dawn. Their arms were pinioned. They were dressed in rough blouses and trousers.

They mounted chairs, with ropes around their necks. The Sultan's firman, approving the death penalty, was read by Naval Captain Raif Bey, a member of the court-martial. They met their fate heroically, although Ismail, who was an elderly man with a gray beard, betrayed emotion as the end approached, his chief concern being lest his son, who was also implicated, should share his father's fate.

I was unable longer to look at the sickening spectacle and drove to the Place Bayadi. Here, in an open space at the side entrance to the office, were five other gallows, from each of which dangled a white-robed corpse. All were non-commissioned officers of the Fourth Battalion of Chasseurs, who participated in the revolt and incited their comrades to rebellion.

GIRL STARVED IN DUNGEON BY PARENTS

Special Cable to Boston American.

ALLESSENDRO, Italy, May 15.—A story of torture unsurpassed in fiction came to light to-day with the discovery of a demented half-starved woman in a sixteen-by-sixteen chamber at Montemagne, near Castellaferro. The woman is the wreck of a being.

When brought into the light it was discovered that she had gone blind from perpetual darkness. Some time during the term of her awful captivity her mind gave way and she is now an idiot, emaciated and clothed in garments which fell from her body with dirt. The authorities attempted to talk to her, but she could only utter unintelligible sounds.

The authorities received an anonymous communication which led them to the hidden gate. They found upon the estate of the Fassone family the entrance to an underground passage blocked with heavy gate. Forcing their way into this they came at last to a pitch-dark chamber and it was here that the woman was found. Food had been carried to her at intervals, but for years she has never seen the light of day nor heard a human voice.

Neighbors said that she is Agostina Fassone (correct), a woman of thirty-five, who mysteriously disappeared from her home a number of years ago. Her parents are under arrest.

MISS BELASCO DEFEATS PAPA AND WILL WED

NEW YORK, May 15.—Miss Renee Belasco, youngest daughter of David Belasco, is engaged to be married to Morris Gest, the theatrical manager. The ceremony will take place at Sherry's on June 15. Miss Belasco has had many suitors, and with her sister, Guasie, has been frequently seen at social functions in company with many of her admirers. Few of her intimate friends suspected that an engagement existed between the playwright's daughter and young Gest.

It is said, however, that a secret engagement has existed for some time owing to Mr. Belasco's objections to his daughter's marrying. Soon after Mr. Belasco's return from San Francisco, Miss Belasco and Mr. Gest had several conferences with the playwright. With the support of Mrs. Belasco young Gest finally obtained Mr. Belasco's consent, and preparations were immediately made for the wedding. Mr. Gest was for several years a representative of Oscar Hammerstein and is now a member of the theatrical firm of Comstock & Gest.

Mrs. Belasco admitted her daughter's engagement when seen at the Hotel Marie Antoinette. "It is true that my daughter is engaged to Mr. Gest," she said. "Mr. Gest and my daughter have been friends for some time. They are devoted to each other, and I am sure that they will be very happy."

CHAMBERLAIN IS CLOSE TO DEATH

LONDON, May 15.—Despite the denials of his son, it is believed to-day that Joseph Chamberlain, the English statesman, is in a critical condition for several days, it has been rumored about the Parliament Building that Mr. Chamberlain has been ailing, but his son denied this. It is reported from an authentic source that Mr. Chamberlain's memory is impaired, and that he walks with the greatest difficulty.

GULF STREAM IN A TEMPERATURE TRICK

NEW YORK, May 15.—A thermal legacy of the gulf stream, which nonplussed the navigators of the Brazilian steamer Goyaz, was reported when that ship reached quarantine from Rio Janeiro.

"When we struck latitude 37 degrees 9 minutes and longitude 72 degrees 20 minutes where, by all the laws of reckoning and past performances, we were due to encounter the warm water and weather of the gulf stream," said Captain Meissner, "we encountered instead a sudden fall in temperature from 75 to 50 degrees."

MOTHER OF 'BABY BLUE EYES' FOUND

my husband, who is a fisherman, and I possess an extraordinary love for children. Unfortunately, we have had none of our own and it has been an unceasing disappointment, which we have several times tried to remedy by adoption.

"Of the four children we have taken to make our own, one has died, two I was compelled to return for very good reasons and the fourth, Adelbert Stimpson, or "little Jimmie," as we called him, was taken from our home last Saturday in my absence and evidently kidnaped by a woman who said she was his mother.

Mrs. Hardy Tells Story.

"They say my brother Frank, aged eighteen, was seen with the boy last Saturday, but that is a mistake. It was on Friday that Frank took Jimmy up to my brother's house near Sullivan Square and left him there until Saturday because I had to attend to some work and could not be at home. My brother, stepchild-law and my mother will vouch for this also my sister's child who played with little Jimmy Friday afternoon and Saturday morning.

"It was on Saturday morning that my mother, Mrs. McCaskill, went up from our home on Jenner street to my brother's home near Baldwin street for Jimmy. She will tell you and the family will satisfy you done that she left my brother's home to return home with Jimmy toward 11 o'clock. It has been stated in the paper that officer Desmond found Jimmy on Harrison avenue near Oneida street at 11, but it must have been later.

"My mother arrived home at Jenner street with Jimmy not earlier than 11 o'clock Saturday forenoon, and they had not been home more than half an hour before the woman who said she was Jimmy's mother called to take the boy away.

"The arrangement we made in the Lowell depot was that I should keep little Jimmy two weeks on trial. If at the end of that time I did not want him, or she did not want me to keep him, she was to take him away. Anyway she came for him while I was away and took Jimmy out in the clothes I had provided. When he was found by an officer a little later he were entirely different clothes.

Describes the Woman.

Mrs. McCaskill describes the woman who took "Baby Blue Eyes" away last Saturday as follows:

About forty years of age, five feet five, weighing about 140 pounds, well built, wearing a tight fitting black short skirt and black toque. She was ruddy bodied and full of face, and knew just what she was talking about.

Mrs. McCaskill and her daughter compared notes and decided it was some woman whose who gave the child away to Mrs. Hardy in the Lowell depot. The woman knew all the details and the agreement and said instead of forcing adoption papers as had been suggested she had come to take the child home and care for it herself. She claimed to be the boy's mother.

FLAY FINANCE BOARD IN PLEA FOR CASSIDY

I'll leave that for you to answer.

"They Want McCullough."

"You can see the hand of the actor in this case. At the last moment as a climax the District Attorney had several police officials file into court with arm fuls of books to the strains of the dead march.

"Those books they sent to Portland and Fall River for. They spent lots of money in carfares going about the country to produce them, and yet I would have loaned them 10 cents to go to No. 60 Fifth street, East Boston, where they would probably find the books which they charge McCullough did not buy.

"I tell you, gentlemen, they were not looking for books—they were looking for McCullough. They don't want Cassidy's blide; they were only tying him up. They want McCullough."

Attorney Sietzman preceded him in his final argument for Cassidy.

Attorney Dietzmann scored James Mudge, the official stenographer of the commission, "The commission," he declared, "left Mudge to bear the burden, but his back broke under the strain." He also flayed Assistant City Auditor Cole.

As in the previous trial, the defence did not present any evidence. Following a forty-minute conference with Judge Schofield, Attorney Dietzmann began his closing argument. He said, in part:

"Mr. Cobe, one of the two most important witnesses for the government, is employed in the city auditor's office, and he doesn't dare to call his soul his own unless City Auditor Mitchell tells him so. He is under the city auditor's thumb and is looking for a conviction."

AMERICAN ENVOYS HONORED BY CORK

DUBLIN, May 15.—The City of Cork will confer the freedom of the municipality upon the Ancient Order of Hibernian envoys from the United States, the Rev. Fr. O'Donnell, State Chaplain of Massachusetts, and National President Cummings.

Mr. Cummings is being feted at his native town, Bandon, County of Cork. He has made seventeen speeches in two days. Fr. O'Donnell received a great reception at Kilkenny last night. Crowds, cheered on and there was a torchlight procession in the streets followed by a banquet. He was formally welcomed by the Mayor and other officials.

The "freedom of the city" is the highest honor which a municipality in Ireland can confer upon a non-citizen. It leaves the stranger with the full privileges of a congress, or voter. If he cares to exercise the franchise, which, of course, he never does, being satisfied with the honor conferred.

Father O'Donnell, at last night's banquet at Kilkenny, said:

"Hereafter and everfore there is a body of the Ancient Order of Hibernians in Ireland federated with the greatest and noblest organization of Irish Catholics in the world. We believe in helping Ireland cease to be a semi-British province or under imperial government—to free and independent as the great Republic across the seas."

WINS CHILD IN STREET BATTLE WITH EX-WIFE

BENNINGTON, Vt., May 15.—Because the chauffeur in charge of the auto failed to be on hand at the right instant, an attempt to carry off the three-year-old daughter of E. N. Estabrook resulted in failure.

The mother of the child, Mrs. Nellie Estabrook, who was granted an order of segregation from Mr. Estabrook at Albany last Saturday, had the child in her possession for an instant, and with the assistance of two detectives from an Albany agency was coaxing the little one toward the waiting machine when the father came running out of the postoffice, where he had gone on a letter. He took the child away from the mother and, beating back the detectives, ran across the square into the office of the county clerk.

Mrs. Estabrook, Mrs. Nora Hacker of Baltimore, a friend, and the two detectives, Sumner Gibbons and George Gibson, followed into the county building, where there was a fight for possession of the little girl. Estabrook fought off the two women.

One of Estabrook's friends drove up in front of the building. The father jumped through the open window, the child was handed to him by his attorney, and before the detectives and the women could run around through the hall Estabrook and the child were speeding away to the home of his parents on South street, only two blocks away.

In the struggle, in which the women played the principal parts, Mrs. Estabrook's coat and shirt waist were torn in several places. Her glasses were also broken.

Mrs. Estabrook is a native of Baltimore and her case has been taken up by a wealthy uncle of that city, George H. Barton. He says he will spend a great part of his fortune if necessary to see that the mother gets her child.

Estabrook was formerly teller of the Bennington County National Bank, and about two years ago went to Troy with the Troy Securities Company. It was in that city that the couple separated. The father at once returned to his home here with the little girl.

APPEAL BY ARMENIANS

The following letter was received to-day from Dr. A. Adamian of No. 1475 Washington street, chairman of the Armenian Church Council:

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Permit me to thank you from the bottom of my heart for the editorial we read in our home paper. Hundreds and thousands of Armenian broken hearts are rejoicing to-day, to see that one of the noblest and ablest pens of the world is started to move in their favor, and they know in full trust how this pen strikes forcefully and unceasingly until it conquers the barracks of predatory interests and unrelated indifference in the face of such appalling tragedy.

The voice of America's Gladstone is sounded and the unspeakable Turk will feel it before long. Our only supplication is "Let God bless and prosper this pen and the advocate of righteousness and the rights of the people."

We remain ever gratefully yours,

LOST HARVARD MAN LOCATED

Thomas P. Williams, the demented Harvard student who disappeared from his uncle's farm at Bethel, Ct., last Wednesday, has been found by the AMERICAN in Chicago. He was traced there by a telegram he had sent to his family in New York, during a lucid moment, asking them to hurry West and bring him home before his mania returned to send him fleeing farther away.

Williams's sister, Miss Dorothy, started on her way to rescue the young man twenty minutes after his pathetic call for help was received. At the same time the AMERICAN wired the information to its Chicago office, and word soon came back that the boy, half dazed, was located and had been turned over to the police.

Young Williams, who was an honor man at Harvard and is the son of wealthy parents living at No. 253 West One Hundred and Fifty-first street, New York, is apparently suffering from a strange intermittent insanity, due to overstudy. This became known to his family a week or more ago when the boy's father took him from the college and put him under the guard of his uncle and aunt on a farm at Bethel. Several times young Williams tried to escape, without succeeding, but on last Wednesday morning he managed to bundle a few clothes into a dress suit case and, with only $30, slipped away unseen.

YOUNG DRAPER IN AIR FLIGHT

PITTSFIELD, May 15.—Disdaining the customary chauffeur, Max Luke J. Minahan, wife of the president of the Pittsfield Aero Club, christened the monster new balloon, the Massachusetts, with a large bouquet of carnations, as it made its initial flight to-day from Aero Park. She buried the flowers in the car of the balloon as it shot into the air.

In the big air craft are George Otis Draper of Hopedale, nephew of Governor Draper, Charles J. Glidden of Boston, Frank B. Comins of Boston, vice-president of the Aero Club of New England, and Leo Stevens of New York, the pilot and maker of the balloon.

The balloon, cheered by over 2,000, rose slowly and then took a southward course in the direction of Springfield.

It was intended to have the balloon christened by Mrs. A. Shuster of Boston, wife of the secretary of the Aero Club of New England, but her husband being ill, she declined.

FALLS 35 FEET; BABY IS UNHURT

WORCESTER, May 15.—Two-year-old Lester Ralph Brown is none the worse today after a thirty-five-foot fall from the piazza of the third-story flat occupied by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. I. Brown, at No. 14 Mason street. A window screen was pushed up and Baby Lester managed to crawl through and fall over. When his mother, who reached the yard below the boy smiled up at her and said: "Baby fall." He had neither bruise, scratch nor broken bone.

FOIL NEW PLOT TO DITCH TRAIN

The Cambridge and Arlington police began an investigation to-day of a second attempt within a week to wreck a train on the Boston & Maine Railroad. An attempt last night was thwarted when a trainman on the outbound track of the southern division, at a point between North Cambridge junction and Lake street, saw the trunk of a tree on the inbound track, and at once notified the railroad office and the police.

A few nights ago a piece of metal was put upon the rail of the inbound track of the Watertown branch of the Fitchburg road, where Penn Pond, narrowly tied to the rail by a rope. This was discovered and removed before the arrival of the inbound train.

POLICE NET CLOSING IN GIRL SLAYER

Charles Douglas, to whom she subsequently became engaged. Chase did not go to her home again.

But it is said that Chase and Miss Register have been seen in company outside of her home within the past year. Letters and a photograph of a young man, which were found in the murdered girl's room, are also said by the police to have intimate bearing on the present search.

The police have also started inquiries in Haverhill, Mass., where Chase is said to have formerly lived, and in Chicopee, where his mother resides.

The search for this man was greatly spurred on to-day by an offer of a reward of $250, made by the slain girl's father, Charles Register. The city has already offered $500, and the State to-day makes a reward of $500.

In their hunt for the slayer the police to-day also made a general roundup of all the persons who have in any way figured in the case. Although they have completely eliminated Johanson, the former employe, from the case, they question him again to-day in a final effort to obtain additional facts.

Question Iceman Again.

They are anxious that Johanson explain just the exact time he left the icehouses, what time he got home and what time he left again for the icehouses and the hour he arrived at his place of employment. They are anxious to hear his reason for going back also want to hear his reason for going back to his house late at night to get but an hour's sleep.

The hunt for the slayer is combined with a search for a bracelet of peculiar design which was torn from Mrs. Register's arm by the stranger. A description of it is being put upon pawn shops in the surrounding towns, as the police believe that the finding of the bracelet will practically place the murderer in their hands.

The unique design of the bracelet will make it easy of recognition, the police believe, and notices have been sent to all pawn brokers in the vicinity to be on the lookout for the jewel and to detain anybody offering it as a pledge.

Hunt for Bracelet.

Miss Register had been given the bracelet by her fiance, Charles Douglass. There are only two of them in existence. Both were made by Richard Semple, head designer for the Gorham Company in this city. Mr. Semple kept one of the bracelets and gave the other to Douglass. The latter presented it to Miss Register shortly after they became engaged to be married.

The bracelet is of the heavy gold. It is five-eighths of an inch wide and oval. It was engraved on the top by hand. The under part is plain. It is hinged on one side and has a clasp on the other.

Besides the bracelet other articles that belonged to the young woman, which are also missing, are being searched for. These is a pink cameo ring, small and old with a white head, a dark leather pocketbook fastened with a clasp on one side, that has ever and six square shaped. It is two by three inches.

Man with Scratched Face.

The strange part of the case and one that the police cannot fathom is what reason could have prompted the slayer to have taken these articles and leave the young woman's brooch and other jewelry behind.

Police interest in the Register strangulation case also centres largely in the identification of John O'Brien, who claims to hail from Manchester, N. H., and is under arrest at the Seventh station charged with a scratched face bearing what are thought to be the imprint of fingernails.

Captain Peter B. Cannon, former chief of detectives, has conferred with the Manchester authorities, and is momentarily expecting verification of his story and of O'Brien's story. When arrested O'Brien explained left his wife and child to visit her sister, on Vermont avenue, in this city, but while he was sleeping in the car his watch, with the address given showed that he was not yet explained satisfactorily the scratches nor his presence near the scene of the tragedy.

Governor Aids Case.

Governor Pothier states that he is prepared to double the reward offered by Mayor Fletcher for the arrest and conviction of Mrs. Register's slayer.

"I will do everything in my power," he said, "to bring the guilty man to justice."

The Mayor acted after consulting the police authorities.

Chief Inspector Horton says he is devoting his energies to running down the man that Mrs. Register was slain.

"That is the most important point, and it has not been lost sight of," he said. "I have had no official report from the medical examiner to show when she died.

"There is a story that the condition of food found in her stomach would show she had eaten about three hours before she was killed and the Register boy says she supped between 6 and 7 o'clock, but they did not see her. We never had any such report from Dr. Perkins, the medical examiner.

FAIR DISTANCE WALKER JOINS CINDERELLAS

ENTRY BLANK.

Name .....

Address .....

.....

Size of shoe.....

Greatest width of foot.....

Length, heel to big toe.....

Height..... Weight.....

An amateur long-distance walker is one of the latest entries in the Cinderella Foot contest of the BOSTON AMERICAN.

And her feet are Number One—if that. This candidate, a young married woman of German descent, is slender but finely proportioned and with feet as gracefully slipped as they are small.

"My feet may be small, but they are mighty practical feet," she said with a smile to the Cinderella Editor, when she made the use of if pretty foot if it isn't good to walk on? I like walking. Why, I'd rather walk than ride anytime. It is nothing for me to walk five or six miles at a time. I invariably walk when I go shopping or marketing or calling. It keeps me in good health, for one thing, and I enjoy it so.

"I have worn shoes two inches without fatigue. My women friends say I am the most persistent walker they know. They say a woman with such small feet ought not to walk too much, lest she wear them out. But my feet are not worn out. They are just as big, or just as small, as they ever were."

Contest Closes Soon.

This woman explained that she wears a Number One shoe—when she can get one to suit her. Often she has to have them made by special order. If she can not get one to suit her she takes a one and one-half, which is loose on her foot.

Remember, this contest Cinderella Editor asks all prospective candidates to enter as soon as possible, so as not to cause a rush at the last moment.

Here are the conditions of the contest:

There are four prizes. They are offered by the BOSTON AMERICAN for the greatest and prettiest feet, as follows:

First—Solid gold bracelet inlaid with jewels.

Second—A silver scrolled slipper.

Third—$25 in cash.

Then there is a fourth and a separate prize. This is nothing less than a place in "A Stubborn Cinderella" company, now playing at the Colonial Theatre. This offer is made by Manager Arthur Houghton of the company, on behalf of Mort. H. Singer, proprietor of the production.

Three Judges to Decide.

The contest will be decided in next week Thursday, May 20, for entries.

Then a board of three competent judges will select from all the entries the thirty best in quality.

From these thirty the judges will name the three winners of the two slipper prizes and the $25 cash prize offered by the BOSTON AMERICAN.

From the same thirty Manager Houghton will name his choice for a member of "A Stubborn Cinderella" company.

Fill out the accompanying entry blank and bring it to the Cinderella Editor of the BOSTON AMERICAN at No. 82 Summer street. Make an outline drawing of your foot and bring this, too, or you can have the outline drawing made at this office. The Cinderella Editor will be on hand during the foot photographed. Contestants must be sixteen years old or over, and at least five feet in height.

COLLEGE BOY WINS HOOK NIGHT HONORS

It is indeed a dull amateur night at the Columbia when a college man is not put through his initiation exercises. Last evening's candidate was a rare specimen who actually walked away with first prize without his clothes being torn to shreds. Of course, he did get to the stage in his underwear, but what he did to get it is a mystery, for he was anything but a finished performer. The royal rooters took a fancy to him, however, and gave him a reception that made him feel like a four-time winner.

The real artist of the evening was Marie Brown, a pretty girl with a sweet voice and a pleasing way of putting the songs of the crowd. Such singing as this little girl contributed is rarely heard in the minor ranks and the critical audience was not slow in showing its appreciation. She was the real winner of the evening and by a head of her competitors, but that it would not do to make comparisons.

SOMERVILLE MAYOR ENDS SALARY ROW

By signing the order adopted by the Somerville aldermen, fixing the salary of the new chief of police, Charles A. Kendall of Somerville, at $1,900, Mayor John M. Woods settled the deadlock over the question of what salary the chief should receive. The matter was a bone of contention for several weeks, and for the past three weeks Chief Kendall has been working without pay.

Good Things to Eat.

Soft-shelled crabs are the delicacies of the season, but they are expensive. Small ones cost $1 a dozen and larger ones $2, and these are not very large. These prices are in the big downtown markets. Handsell crabs are 50 cents a dozen.

Fresh goose eggs are considered a delicacy, and people who know them like them. They cost five cents apiece, and for the prime condition must be boiled five minutes. They are rather larger than two good-sized hen's eggs.

Fresh duck eggs which are, however, a little stronger than hen eggs, are 28 and 30 cents a dozen.

Large bunches of fine large native asparagus are only 25 cents.

Very good strawberries can be had two boxes for 25 cents. Selected berries for the first degree. A conference of those interested in the prosecution was held to-day at the District Attorney's office. District Attorney Higgins is still in Jamaica.

Two medium-sized pineapples can be had for 25 cents.

One California artichokes, which are not, however, as good as the French, cost 25 cents.

Twenty-five California tangerines cost 25 cents.

Ten good large navel oranges can be had for 25 cents.

West Indian apples are big russet, lemon-shaped fruit, with pits half as large as the apple. They are used sometimes for salad, and cost 20 cents each.

GOODRICH QUITS NAVY.

NEW YORK, May 15.—Rear-Admiral Goodrich to-day retired from active service, relinquishing command if the Brooklyn Navy Yard, which is now in command of Captain Joseph Murdock.

Lowell candidates in the great Race Around the World and Tours to Europe contest are getting very active. Mayor George H. Brown, of Lowell, has lined up on the side of Almanzor Dupuis, of No. 20 Ennell street, that city, and has started the ball rolling by subscribing himself for the young man.

The other two candidates in Lowell, Margaret V. Cuff, of No. 13 Dutton street, and William Rhodes, of No. 264 Middlesex street, are also active, and as this trio live in widely scattered section of the city, each is confident that a thorough canvass of their particular locality will land one of the great tour prizes.

The Odd Fellows, the Knights of Pythias and several church organizations have interested themselves in the candidates in Lowell and the interest being shown in the contest in the Mill City is worthy of application in some of the other cities in New England.

A novel plan of campaign has been evolved by Marion Coogan, of No. 168 Merrimack street, Boston, who is the Vaudeville Actors' champion in the Tours to Europe Contest. She has organized Boosters' Union No. 89 and is issuing membership cards to all who will assist her in the contest. She is one of the busy workers for candidates in the girls' division.

Another hard working candidate is Celia Deutschmann, of No. 26 Village street, Boston. She is the candidate of the Lincoln House Union and in addition has interested a wide circle of friends.

Keep on Working.

Keep on working, boys and girls. Let your friends know how you are working and you will be surprised to find how much assistance will come to you.

No matter how far down the list you may be, you can still make a showing, and after all, it won't be hard to get enough votes to insure yourself to win at least one of the prizes.

Think of the opportunity before you.

Only about one-third of the race is over and by getting busy now you have as good an opportunity of getting as the others who have started long before you. Subscriptions are what will count and will send you up the ladder in leaps and bounds.

If you are a candidate, don't waste any time. You have only time to spare, but you have plenty of time, if you are working, to climb to the very top of the voting list.

There are fifty-eight great long prizes to be awarded, the girls and each of the winners has the privilege of selecting his or her own tour. There are in reality 116 prizes. They include a complete tour of the earth for the boys, tours to Europe for the girls and American sightseeing trips to New York, Washington, Philadelphia and Niagara Falls for boys and girls.

Each of the tours is of tremendous educational value. The winning of them will serve to crown you the most popular boys and girls of the New England States. They will serve to crown you as among the most energetic, plucky young citizens of New England. Isn't that and the wonderful tours themselves, all at the expense of the BOSTON AMERICAN, worth while trying for? Get busy now with your votes and subscriptions.

World Tour Contest Is Like Presidential Race

By CARL LAGERQUIST.

Providence Candidate in Race Around-the-World.

The time of voting for the great officers of our country has gone by for a time. But now a contest is open in which almost any young New Englander, boy or girl, may be a candidate.

One does not need to be a politician or a master of the tongue, but has to have ambition, if he or she intends to win. The winners of this contest, which the BOSTON AMERICAN is now conducting, will receive honors among New Englanders, as great as W. H. Taft has.

All participants are practically invisible to the voters, as they are not traveling in this campaign and making speeches, but they have warm supporters, candidates, and then vote. Most of the candidates are minors, and we might called this the "Minor Presidential Race." No one will receive that seat of honor, as a President, but will feel like a KING, when he or she hears that he or she has won over hundreds, not five or six, and not as a Democrat, Republican, Socialist or Independent, but as a candidate of that party named, "I shall win."

YOUNG DANCERS TO APPEAR IN PUBLIC

Parents and friends of the pupils of the Isabel Florence School of Dancing, at No. 310 Huntington Chambers, are anticipating the entertainment to be given to-night in the school hall. The entertainment is styled: "Pupils of Isabel Florence at Home With Their Teacher." There are to be songs, choruses and jokes galore.

Some of the little ones have become very proficient as dancers, notably Amy Fried, who is but five years of age and yet does eight steps of a difficult buck dance, and Helen McLaughlin, seven, who dances almost perfectly so far as time and tune are concerned.

CHARGE BRIDE BROKE LAW TO AID HUSBAND

With her face covered by her hands all during the hearing, Mrs. Annie H. Woodward, the Melrose Highlands bride of two months, appeared before Judge Murray in the second session of Boston Municipal Court to-day to answer to two charges of forgery. She waived examination and was held in $500 for the Grand Jury. Her sister, Mrs. Grace P. French of Melrose Highlands, furnished surety.

The arrest of Mrs. Woodward has created a sensation in Melrose and Malden, where the woman has a large circle of acquaintances who have always held her in the highest esteem.

Her husband, Charles H. Woodward, who went her after a romantic courtship, was arraigned in the first session of the Municipal Court on a charge of uttering a forged check, and was held in $2,000 bail for the Grand Jury. It was said he would forfeit his bail.

The husband was held in the higher bail on account of his police record.

Woodward is fifty-nine years old and his wife is thirty-two. He has served seven years in Maryland for forgery. A woman, Louisa Ames, said to be his first wife, was given four years when he was given seven years in Maryland. After her release she killed herself for shame.

The specific charge against Woodward is forging the name of D. Webster King to a check for $100 payable to Mary J. Lovell and of forging King's name to a $250 check payable to Julia E. Morton.

Before her marriage Mrs. Woodward was Annie Yates. Her friends are rallying to her support, declaring that she may have innocently been led into legal error or that she was so under her husband's influence that she was not wholly responsible.

After their marriage the Woodwards lived with the bride's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar W. French of Melrose Highlands.

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS

TRADING DULL IN NEW YORK

By T. C. SHOTWELL.

NEW YORK, May 15.—Standard railroad industrial shares displayed strength during the early trading in Wall street today. Gains of an average of one point were made under leadership of Union Pacific and Reading. Steel common was strong, but only fractionally higher. Trading was dull.

Low priced railroad shares, such as Rock Island, Southern railway and Erie were under pressure as offerings by commission houses, whose customers had purchased them at lower figures, and who considered the time opportune for taking profits. Amalgamated Copper was under pressure and yielded about ½ point. Smelters showed strength and were a trifle higher. Consolidated Gas was the strong feature of the specialties, with a gain of nearly one point to the new high record for this movement of 147¾.

Strength of Consolidated Gas was due to a rumor that an extra dividend would be declared out of the proceeds of the sale of some of its New York real estate and out of earnings from the electrical branch of its business.

In London American shares were dull, although fractionally higher. On the New York Curb market Nevada Consolidated continued in demand. Other coppers also exhibited strength. Silver shares showed steadiness.

MINING LIST FIRM IN TONE

State Street—Closing—A five-dollar advance in Swift's & Co.'s stock was the market feature of the two noon's sessions locally. The stock touched 110½. The mining share market was quick but firm in tone. Strength developed in Mohawk on buying from the Lake. The stock rose from 55¼ at the opening to 56¾.

U. S. Smelting stocks were active and higher. The common touched 47¾ and the preferred 47¾. North Butte was neglected for a wonder, there being only few sales.

New York sent over a tip which was so generous that it was read with suspicion. It said "buy any stock except Amalgamated, which is a sale." It had no effect, however.

Trading on the curb exchange was confined pretty much to Southern Development which was weak and strong by spells, but it displayed an advancing tendency. Other issues were firm, but with moderate price changes.

CUTS THROAT ON STREET; MAY DIE

"I went crazy, and I'll put an end to it all." Hastily scribbling these words on a card, James Mobley, thirty years old, of No. 33 Emerald street, South End, walked into Stoughton street and slashed his throat with a razor. The man was soon to fall by an attendant of the Homeopathic Hospital, who rushed into the institution. The doctors say he will probably die.

Nelson Dale have heard from their missing son Arthur, who disappeared on March 9.—He is in London, and requests them to send him money with which to pay his passage back. Young Dale was employed in a local bank as a correspondence clerk, and when he dropped out of sight his books were examined and everything was found correct.

Lilla Ormond sailed for Europe yesterday, to be gone until September. She is to sing in London during the season.

A treat for musical Boston next season will be the first appearance in America of Sergius Rachmaninoff, a leading Russian composer and pianist. He has written three operas that have been produced in his own country, two symphonies for orchestra, many songs, and much chamber and piano music. He is to appear with the Boston Symphony Orchestra here and in New York.

Madame Nordica is to sing in two concerts in London, May 28 and June 10.

Many will regret to hear that Bernhard Listemann, one of the first conductors of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, has decided to return to Chicago.

Miss Fanny Lewis is to give a piano recital at Jordan Hall next Tuesday evening.

The Metropolitan Opera Company announces the closing date, to composers enforcing its conditions, of June 1 next, for the best grand opera, to be September 15. The prize winner is to receive $150 royalty for every performance, after the first five years have elapsed. Other operas accepted for production will receive $100 royalty each performance.

Alexander Kubitzky, tenor, of the Boston Opera Company, has wilted for Europe.

Arthur Foote has consented to decide the contest at Wellesley College Wednesday evening next for the prize song. More than twenty names have already been submitted.

The Conservatory Orchestra, Mr. Chadwick conducting, assisted by advanced students, gave a concert Wednesday evening in Jordan Hall. Miss Augusta Wiedemeier of Stockton, Cal. and Miss Elisabeth Haice of Newport, R. I., played the piano virtuosity of great promise and Miss Florence Jefferson of Provo, Utah, who has a beautiful voice, sang the "Odysseus" aria by Bruch with brilliancy and noble expression.

A few of this season's song hits are "Miss Lee," by R. M. Stults, the author of "The Sweetest Story Ever Told," "If Dreams Were Only True," song and chorus, true melody; "La Spagnola" (The Spanish Dancer), by Vincent M. Chiara; the song is the rage now in the cafes of Europe. The author must have heard that American comic, "The Bowery," before composing the drum part.

Miss Mabel J. Golden and pupils will give a recital Tuesday evening in Association Hall.

The Sunday School of St. Angela's Parish, Milton, gave the operetta, "Golden Hair," last Thursday evening at the town hall, which was crowded. Mrs. Charles F. Stack was the musical director and Father Joseph McGrath, superintendent. Miss Anna P. Flynn, William J. Daley and Miss Adelia Casey were the principals. It was a worthy presentation and reflected credit on all concerned.

The Royal Vendes's Artillery Regiment Band of Sweden will give a concert at Symphony Temple, Wednesday evening, May 19.

DRAG SOUTH BAY FOR BODY OF BOY

The harbor police resumed their work of dragging the waters of the South Bay at 8 o'clock this morning in an effort to recover the body of an unknown lad who was drowned near Meaney's wharf, on which he had been playing.

Solomon Risher, 7 years old, of No. 13 Meander street, and Louis Henrotten, 7 years old, of No. 917 Harrison avenue, told the police of the East Dedham street station that they had been playing on Meaney's wharf with a boy of about their own age whom they did not know, when the little lad, his play, ran too near the edge of the wharf and slipped off into the water of the bay before they could be drowned before assistance could reach him.

CURE FOR LOCKJAW HAS BEEN FOUND

MILWAUKEE, Wis., May 14.—Medical men believe a cure for the hitherto fatal tetanus, or lockjaw, has been discovered by Professor A. S. Lorenzini, of the Chicago University of Wisconsin, who has been co-operating with Milwaukee physicians in the case of Albert Johnson. The result was not a cure, but it warrants the opinion that a very significant step has been taken in the direction of a remedy. Professor Lorenzini produces a substance which destroys the toxine or poison produced by the germ of lockjaw outside the body, and when the disease occurs in animals.

NEWTON SCHOOL HEAD RESIGNS POSITION

Two years of internal dissension in the administration of the Newton schools was abruptly terminated, when the School Committee of that city, accepted as a resignation the ultimatum presented by Marshall R. Perrin, for sixteen years superintendent of schools, and at once named two men to take up his duties at the close of the present term.

WALL ST. NEWS FOR INVESTORS

WALL STREET, New York, May 15.—Stability of the stock market has been put to a test by one of the leading operators liquidating a line of standard issues. The result is that after this operator was permitted to get rid of his holdings, banking support was extended, and the position of the bull market is now materially strengthened.

Leading operators say that Steel is the one stock in which they have confidence, and they express the belief that yesterday's transactions were nothing more than a raid.

$ $ $

Inquiries for steel from railroad companies so far this week have been larger than in any previous week for some time past. It now looks as though the car roads were getting ready to contract for large amounts of material from the steel companies. As a matter of fact, rail orders for the past two or three weeks have been larger than reported in any similar period since the panic.

Prices for structural steel and steel bars continue strong, and further advances of $1 a ton in the near future would not be surprising.

Wire producers continue to receive a large amount of business, and production this year may exceed the output in the boom year of 1907.

$ $ $

Selling of Union Pacific has been the puzzle of the street for the last week. Inside interests in its insist that they are not liquidating and point to the rapid recovery of the stock after every break as proof that no pressure is on the market. They say that the reason for the peculiar fluctuations of this stock is that it is no longer a great bargain, and that it is being purchased and sold with great discrimination.

$ $ $

The Stree believes that distribution has been going on in Union Pacific for some weeks, but insiders insist that they are buying more Union Pacific stock than they are selling. They say it will be retired from the Street because of its big profits in the next two years. Mysterious hints are dropped at the headquarters of some forthcoming announcement.

At the head office it is stated that rains have fallen throughout Atchison's territory. With this read, on with other Western lines, the future will be determined by the crops, and if these be bountiful, dividends will be advanced in the Autumn; this was confirmed today. However, the company is not dependent on agriculture to the extent of a decade ago. In 1898 products of the fields constituted 50 per cent. of the road's business; animals, 13 per cent.; manufactures, 11 per cent.; mines, 12 per cent.; and miscellaneous, 19 per cent. At present agriculture represents 25 per cent.; animals, 8 per cent.; manufactures, 18 per cent.; mines, 22 per cent.; and miscellaneous, 19 per cent. Within ten years, the company has increased its mileage from 7,083 to 9,415.

The population served by a railway is indicated by the passenger density. Ten years ago traffic was 56,729. Today it is 100,270. In the same time, train loads have increased from 169 to 366 tons.

$ $ $

President Ripley of the Atchison says:

"I believe the present is a good time for extensive financing. Even if money isn't specially needed, a railroad treasury should be well supplied. We don't want to repeat the bitter experience of three or four years ago, with short term notes.

"Suppose that we did pay 4 per cent. now, and can get only 2½ to 3 per cent. on call loans. We would be ahead in the long run by borrowing the money, especially as the present development is coming.

"In the bond issues, however, we would have the consent of the Kansas Railroad Commission, and we have made no application to it yet. That is all we can say about it now."

$ $ $

The supposition is that in moving up Delaware & Hudson to 200, the bulls had taken on a large number of car trust orders; but if this was the case, the expectation is disappointed, since the price reacted to the extent of a point and a half, which is certainly only small, considering the extent of the previous rise. Reading has been sympathetically influenced by the bear's reaction, but there is no indication of falling away from the range which it has maintained.

$ $ $

Southern Railway is helped by Mr. Hill's interview, which this magazine, who can ill recently, could not see much that was new, outside of the news of the recent enthusiastic reception by the conservative quarters it is said the stock has considerably gained in favor and is fully entitled to the advance to which it has scored.

$ $ $

Amalgamated Copper, which has been one of the weakest stocks on the decline, this week on the news of the recent return from abroad of a capitalist largely interested in the stock, and who is said to have missed the recent rise, it is argued that the decline was really a shakeout to facilitate accumulation.

$ $ $

An increase in the price of copper metal is expected in the near future. The leading selling agents are understood to have disposed of large quantities thus far in May. One of the heaviest producers has sold out everything up to August 1, according to a report current in good quarters. The strength in the copper shares indicates a much better tone in that direction. Electrolytic accumulation is going on in the porphyry coppers, and all preparations seem to be making for extended activity in the mining market.

YALE FIELD, NEW HAVEN, Ct., May 15.—With showers threatening Yale and Harvard met this afternoon in their annual dual track games. To-day's meet was the first competition for the cup offered for nine years by prominent alumni of the two universities.

A bright sun in the early morning made the track fast, but later in the day there were indications of rain.

There was every sign that the games would prove close. Yale expected to win by a margin of some half dozen points.

James R. Sullivan of New York was referee, W. H. Robertson of New York was starter, and W. G. Anderson, Yale, announcer. The judges were Barlow S. Weeks, Harry Lyons, G. B. Billings and F. W. Rubien of New York city.

There was no telling how some of the contests would result. Some expected that the hurdles races would decide the meet, and in these dashes over the "horses" the captains of the respective teams met and the weight of victory burdened their shoulders.

The Yale men conceived the sprint to Foster, the Crimson flyer, who was looking like a race horse and able to cut out any kind of record breaking pace that was needed.

Trainer Johnny Mack expected to get some revenge over his old rival, Pooch Donovan, for beating him in that memorable football game last fall by sending his young athletes over the finish line ahead of those tutored by the Crimson veteran.

Pooch told Johnny to keep an eye out for that boy Jacques, who recently broke the Harvard record for the mile, as he had come down to break the hearts of the Elinasmen, and the Boston boy was looked upon as a track hero.

Harvard looked good on the track, but in the field events Yale expected to pick up most of its points.

C. H. Whorlock of Newton has given Tiler his two-year-old colt Todtendill, by Todd, 2:14¾, to be prepared for his stake events, the youngster being entered in $50,000 worth of futurity stakes.

News from Athol is to the effect that W. C. Miller has traded Homer, 2:21¼, for a great daughter of Kendall, 2:20¼, which he has sent to the races that Twilight, by Stamboul, 2:07¾, owned by Merri Howard, is due for a fast mark this season, and that Grey Birch, 2:08¾, in the hands of George Lash, is better than a $15 performer.

Jimmy O'Donnell has at Readville a pacing mare of Reprobatchez, 2:04¾, that is making wonderful improvement this year. Last season she was sick most of the time.

The Fellsway Driving Club are making great plans for one of the best days of racing ever held there next season at Charlestown Park. Fifteen fraternal races are on the card—a 2:30, 2:25, 2:17 and free-for-all—each for a purse of $100. This is a reminder of the programs being amateur events.

George K., 2:16½, recently met his death in a runaway in Portland, Me. He was the property of Dr. J. K. F. Rogers of South Portland.

A driving club has been formed in Winooski, Vt., with George E. Whitney president. Plans are afoot to build a new track and hold weekly matinees for prizes and trophies.

Billy Garland of the Fellsway Club has bought from a brother owner, H. H. Perkins, the racing mare Bonnie Bell. This mare was prominent last season in the club's races.

Trainer Frank Long has engaged with George Van Dyke of this city, and will later on bring several of the Leach Stream Farm horses to Readville from Canaan, Vt.

Jimmy Carpenter has at Readville the stake colt Echo Todd, the property of Jerry Howard of Dorchester, and he is entered in many good enough to take to the races later in the season.

Charles Leonard has sold to his brother George his interest in the horses they owned together. Those ready to make up for racing have been sent to Tiler. The Readville trainer has, too, had received the trotter John A from the Somerville horseman, H. W. Carpenter.

Robin Red, 2:20¼, recently purchased from Ben Merrill by Mr. Sanborn of the Fellsway Driving Club, has been a pretty fine trotter. She was returned winner in her first start at Combination.

J. V. N. Stults of the Metropolitan Driving Club will sell his trotting gelding Hawkins, 2:26¾, at the Readville sale.

George G. Hall and Everett L. Smith have returned to Boston from an automobile trip to Waterville, Me., where they looked over the horses belonging to C. H. Nelson.

D. W. Caton of Foxboro has John Morgan taking up his string at Readville. Capt. Caton will be one of the three-year-old Filly Reina, engaged in the Futurity stakes.

SOLDIERS FIELD, May 15.—Harvard men crowded the stands this afternoon to witness the first of the two Princeton games.

Hartford started for the Crimson against the Orange and Black in Captain Currier. Hartford looks ready for the middle of the game if necessary.

The easy victories scored by the men from Old Nassau last year, still rankle deeply in the breasts of the Harvard men. Princeton has played twenty games already and won fourteen, while Harvard has only played eight. Harvard won all but the game with Holy Cross last Saturday, when the boys blew up after having the game sewed up.

Harvard presented the same strong team that has been playing all season. Briggs, on first base, MacLaughlin at second base, Lanigan at third base and Simons at shortstop, made a formidable infield, and the veterans, Dunn in left, Harvey in centre and Aronson in right, a very strong and capable outfield.

Captain Currier was very well satisfied with the team, as his spirit and aggressiveness behind the bat proved.

Princeton men were so confident of winning this afternoon that they have already planned a celebration to-night, and have made arrangements for a two-straight victory when the second game is played at Princeton next Saturday.

AMHERST SCHOOL MEET.

One of the big events to-day will be the annual interscholastic meet to be held at Amherst. Considerable interest is being shown and the finest promises to be even better than that of last Spring, when several records were set. The school winning the championship the most times in three years will receive a large cup as a souvenir. In case of a tie in several wins, the one that will get it will be having the largest total of points. Silver cups will be given Amherst seal on the front will be given as prizes to the individual winners of the first three places in each event. Last year Hartford high school won the championship with Andover a close second.

ARE AMERICANS BARBARIANS? Professor Ferrero in an article to the SUNDAY AMERICAN says we are not and tells why. His criticism of our social customs is wonderfully interesting.

H. Traiser & Co., Makers "Pippins" 5-Cent Cigar, Boston:

Dear Sirs: I noticed your ad. in this morning's paper and I thought it a good time to express my opinion of your "Pippins" cigar. I have smoked Pippins many years and I consider it the best five-cent cigar made, superior to many ten-cent cigars. I use the dark wrapper grade. Two of my friends who used to smoke ten-cent goods are now smoking

Traiser's Pippins

In some places I go to get them in the city they show me other brands and say "There is something that is way ahead of Pippins," but I have yet to find one that equals it, and as long as you keep up your high standard of quality just so long will you lead all others.

Wishing you the great success you rightly deserve, I remain, Yours truly,

STAKE HORSES OF LOCAL MEN AT READVILLE

In the 2:08 events down the Grand Circuit this season there are entries from this vicinity that may cause a lot of trouble to the touted Bias and Melva J., in the stable of "Long Shot" Cox. For example:

C. W. Lasell, of Whittinsville, with four in his list—Henry Setzer, Wilkerson, Judge Lee (2:13¼) and Bonnie Way, in rating the speed of these. It is known that Henry Setzer had a trial of 2:08½ last season, when three years old; Wilkerson one of 2:07¾; Judge Lee was separately timed in a race around 2:08, while two years ago Bonnie Way, then three, was timed many heats in better than 2:10 in her races. This certainly is a good enough showing for a person having ambitions to enter against the stars of the whole country.

Henry Titer, the Readville trainer, has a few in his care that may make history. There is Birchleaf, 2:12¾, record made in his initial race of last season at Dover. He is owned by Warren F. Daniel of Franklin, N. H., and is set for 2:08 or better.

Lou McDonald, who wintered in Memphis, looks strong in the list with Miss Adbell that has 2:06¾ to her credit, owned by Ralph R. Williams of Boston; Margin, with a trial of 2:09¾, but like Miss Adbell, was last year on the shelf with lameness; The Maciner, owned by T. H. Phair, Presque Isle, Me., and worked last Fall in 2:11 by Bob Proctor, and the mare Gladys, of which little is known.

William Yeiser, who has the horses of William Snell of New Bedford, will manipulate the lines over Caduceus. He came from the Johnson farm, and was timed two years ago in 2:13¼, at Readville. He is a fast trotter, but the year cannot be told till development in itself may relate the story.

Kaldar, 2:22¼, is the property of Frank Robbins of the Quincy House in this city. He is in the stable of Billy O'Neil at Lexington. One of his victories last season was at Woonsocket, R. I., and in carrying off the honors he displayed all the signs of a genuine race horse. He has no mile track trials to bank on.

Silver Baron is owned by the Carroll brothers in South Boston. Last year he was trained by Mike Bowerman and at the Lexington meeting stepped a workout in 2:08¾. He is good-headed, so those knowing say, and is bound to show for himself at the proper time.

STOCK EXCHANGE TEAM GOING SOME

That the Boston Stock Exchange ball team intends wiping up the diamond with the Gotham bunch this year is the annual game on May 22 is evident by the regular practice being done. Almost every afternoon the youthful financiers get out to the American League grounds and warm up. There will be some well-known ex-college players in the lineup, including Ray Hayes, Herbert Foster, Jimmy Dean, Clark, Greenough, Devens, the old Harvard players, Percey, Whitney and Hubbard.

WANT GAME TOMORROW.

Owing to the cancellation of their game for tomorrow, the Dexter A. C. of Malden is without a game for that date. They would like to hear from some strong amateur team. Will give or take full expenses. Address William T. Dunn, No. 465 Charles street, Malden, Mass., or telephone R. & M. Exchange 162.

Boxing News in Brief Form

The Harry Lewis-Christy Williams bout scheduled for Lawrence on May 17 has been postponed one week. They will box twelve rounds. Williams and Jimmy Gardner have agreed to box before the first club that wants the match.

* * *

On Monday night Patsy Kline and Kid Corbett box fifteen rounds at Baltimore at 122 pounds, weigh in at 4 o'clock. Kline also meets Young Guarini at the Long Acre Club on June 1—that is, if the club can get an injunction preventing the police from interfering.

* * *

Freddie Corbett, the young Italian lightweight from Philadelphia, will make his initial bow to New York Monday night when he hooks up with Eddie Walsh, the Harlem crack, at the Bedford Club.

* * *

Jimmy Coffroth made a ten strike when he induced Kelly and Papke to go forty-five rounds instead of twenty on Saturday afternoon. It will mean a few thousand dollars more in the box office.

* * *

Johnny Coulon, the bantamweight champion, is tentatively matched for $1,000 for his title and twenty-five pounds with Monte Attell, which it takes place at Jimmy Coffroth's, Colma, Cal., A. C., on June 12.

* * *

That was good judgment on the part of Sandy Ferguson's manager to postpone his fight with Jeanette till May 29. He will have more time to get acclimated and beat the colored heavyweight.

* * *

Stanley Ketchel will be on deck to witness the Johnson-O'Brien fight at Philadelphia on Wednesday night.

* * *

Young Ezzo has an offer from San Francisco. He is wanted to meet Johnny Murray, the best lightweight on the Pacific coast, in a twenty-round bout, May 28. This is the night before the Johnny Hyland bout, and is considered a great fight night in the western metropolis. The offer is a straight percentage, and Ezzo, through his manager, has asked for some sort of a guarantee, and also insisted upon the weight being at 133 pounds instead of catchweights.

* * *

Cable dispatches say Fitzsimmons and Burns will fight in Australia in October. To be exact, it will be truthful to say they have all that. Fitz and Burns will meet in the ring.

* * *

Jeffries has wasted away until he weighs only 238 pounds. Poor, emaciated frame! How worried Jim's folks must be!

* * *

The house has been sold out for the Johnson-O'Brien fight at Philadelphia on May 10, and there will be many disappointed ones.

Results of Boxing Bouts

Jack Mulkern of Boston was knocked out in the second round of what was to have been an eight-round bout at the Fanueil A. A. by Jim McCarthy of Chicago. Kid Shea was to have met McCarthy, but at the last minute sent word that he could not appear, and Mulkern went on in his place. In the preliminaries Mart Ryan defeated Joe Price in the first round; Johnny Murphy got the decision over Jack Lee in two rounds and Mark Connolly bested Joe Lannon in three rounds.

SAVANNAH, May 16.—Young Evans of New York beat Charlie Riley of New York in two and one-half rounds, the referee stopping the fight.

PHILADELPHIA, May 15.—Jack Loughrey of Manayunk was outfought by Paddy Lavin of Buffalo in a serious, rough six-round fight.

WILKESBARRE, May 15.—Frankie Neil, the former world's champion bantamweight, went to a draw with Bert O'Donnell, a local boy.

LANCASTER, Pa., May 15.—In six rounds of hard fighting, Leo Houck, Lancaster, bested Tommy O'Keefe of Philadelphia with an ease that surprised everybody.

NEW YORK, May 15.—The police put a stop to a boxing bout between Johnny Glover of Boston and Johnny Murphy of New York at the Olympic A. C. at the end of the first round. The principals and the club officials were arrested.

PICK KELLY TO WIN WORLD CHAMPIONSHIP

By IGOE.

NEW YORK, May 15.—Out under the blue skies to-day in Jim Coffroth's Sunshine Club at Colma, Billy Papke and Hugo Kelly will battle forty-five rounds for the middleweight championship of the world—middleweight championship because Stanley Ketchel will never again scale that weight in this world. Yesterday at Woodlawn Jim the great Michigander tipped the beam at close to 175 pounds, and this after many days of road work and training for Colonel McGann of Pittsburg.

Both Kelly and Papke have fallen before the cruel body punches of the man with the unerring left hook. That battle to-day will make a new champion, even though the confident Ketchel only smiles when you ask him if he intends to fight the winner at the weights.

Coffroth has a match in mind for Ketchel and the victor of this afternoon's contest, but whoever the lucky man to-day may be, he might just as well make up his mind that his title would be safe insofar as the Michigan fighting machine can't defend his title at the regulation notch.

Kelly will rule a slight favorite to-day, as the San Francisco fans think he has a bit of class over Papke. Not so in Los Angeles, where the Illinois thunderbolt made the greatest drive of his career against Ketchel, and the only fight that the left shift fellow ever lost. Had they matched Kelly with Papke after that fight there wouldn't have been any men in the Orange town foolish enough to take the short end at 10 to 1 against Papke.

In San Francisco the men who wager carefully are imbued with the idea that Papke isn't the bear that he was thought to be. Some think that he even displayed a lack of real fighting heart in the last fight with Ketchel. He was on his knee taking the count and smiling to his seconds in his corner. He was there when the fatal ten was tolled off.

Ketchel Claims Papke Quit.

Afterwards he claimed that he was given the worst of the count; that the referee or timekeeper didn't tell him he knew the seconds as they were ticked off. Ketchel claims he quit cold, and he should know if anyone does.

Kelly's one performance before San Francisco was that little three-round spasm with Ketchel. He gave the cowboy the short end at 10 to 8 in three rounds according to reports from the ringside. But the cowboy is a popular pet. At that time Ketchel had a notion that he could walk into any opponent without preparing for him. That's no business when you're gumboling thumps with the Italian. He cut and ripped up right hand uppercuts that made the Kewanee man famous is a thing of the past.

To-day we will try to do some clever things that Kelly has been saving for months. Wherever wins can be tabbed the middleweight champion of the world, but he will be about the best-beat thing that ever graced that particular throne.

NEWSBOYS IN HOT GAME.

The newsboys in the BOSTON AMERICAN mailing room have accepted the challenge of the Traveler newsboys to play on Boston Common on the morning of May 31. The lineup of the AMERICAN'S boys will be: B. Ashey, 1.f.; Small Happy, c.f.; P. Levin, r.f.; Big Happy, 1b.; Akler, 2b.; B. Levin, s.s.; Zerrowsky, 3b.; Snap Cohen, c.; Red Russell, p.

A silver loving cup will go to the winner of the game, and the boys from the two papers are working hard every day so as to be in fine fettle and shape to play the best game of their lives.

KEELER BETTER THAN EVER

In 1907 Keeler's father was dying, and the index finger of the outfielder's right hand was in such condition that several experts told him that amputation of the finger would be necessary to save the hand. In 1908 Keeler was ill all season. The finger has entirely healed, and Keeler is feeling better to-day than he ever felt. Worry has been removed, and therefore Keeler is hitting, fielding and running bases the way he did before trouble came his way.

CLABBY SHAPES UP LIKE A M'COY

Not since the days of Kid McCoy has a fighter come along who looks so much like the Hoosier wizard as Jimmy Clabby, who meets Jimmy Quill three rounds a week. He is the counterpart of the old time marvel in appearance and may yet equal his record in the game though he is still a welter weight and easily makes the limit. He will probably be lighter than Quill when he enters the ring and is one of the few bona fide men in the class as Gardner, Lewis and Mike Sullivan don't care to make 142 pounds and if Clabby can win from Quill there is no reason why he shouldn't be pointed for the championship of his division.

It being his first engagement in the East he is more than anxious to make good but has been waiting for a match for some time.

Clabby has tackled all the hard game in the Middle West and got away with it and figures there is nothing in this section any better.

JOHNSON AT PHILADELPHIA

PHILADELPHIA, May 15.—Jack Johnson, the world's heavyweight champion, who meets Jack O'Brien in a six-round bout here next Wednesday night, has arrived to complete his training. Johnson has been doing road work for ten days. He will put the finishing touches to his training in Mercantville. The big Texan declares that he expects to stop O'Brien inside the limit.

Two Types of Neighbors

By Beatrice Fairfax

THERE are two kinds of neighbors. I mean women neighbors, for men neighbors don't count very much, as they are away most of the time.

There is the neighbor who is willing to do a friendly service, but who minds her own business, and there is the neighbor who is not so willing about the friendly service and who finds it an absolute impossibility to mind her own business. Perhaps you live next door to her and know her type.

First of all, she is a borrower; she borrows everything from your silver to the baby's shoes. She never makes a cake without finding some ingredient lacking, so she just runs in to borrow a cup of sugar or the vanilla or the baking thus.

She tells you how shabby your coat looks in the sunlight, and she finds your first gray hair.

She tells you how she always defends you, no matter what others may say against you. She knows what time your husband comes home, and she tells you what she would say to him were she in your place, when he is late.

When your boy and hers fight, and all growing boys will fight once in a while, she invariably declares her boy to be in the right and makes yours out a monster of badness. She tells you all sorts of things your neighbors have said about you and does her best to stir up trouble.

Poses as Your Best Friend

Through it all she poses as being a jolly, good-natured, kind person and your best friend.

Very few neighborhoods are free from some woman of this type, and she usually upsets the entire community.

There is only one good thing about her and that is that she rarely stays long enough in one neighborhood; she feels her unpopularity and moves on to make fresh mischief.

The other kind of neighbor is the woman who minds her own business, but is always ready to help a neighbor out in time of difficulty.

If your baby is ill, she is quick to offer her services in taking care of it, in order that you may get a rest.

When you are entertaining guests she gladly offers her prettiest centrepiece, or comes running in with a plate of delicious cookies that she has just made, and perhaps they would be a welcome addition to the feast.

She is not envious and enters with heartfelt interest into the purchase of your new parlor carpet or Spring suit. She does not talk gossip, nor care to listen to it.

You have your choice between these two types of women; you can be like one or you can be like the other. You can be looked upon with love and respect, or you can be regarded as a spiteful nuisance.

Don't Get the Borrowing Habit

Try not to get the borrowing habit; it is shiftless and puts you under a constant obligation to your neighbors.

It may not seem much to borrow a cup of sugar or a little flour or half a dozen table napkins; but the sugar and flour soon grow into pounds and constant washing wears out the table napkins.

Have some system and use your own things.

Above all, never carry tales from house to house, and when you enter a neighbor's house, mind your own business and let her mind hers. Don't criticise her husband or her children; she will only hate you for doing so, just as you would hate her if the situation were reversed.

Your house is your kingdom, and if you rule it properly you will find no time to attend to the affairs of your neighbors.

Be willing to do all you can when called upon, for that is the duty of a good neighbor, but until called upon mind your own business.

King Cophetua and the Beggar Maid—By Nell Brinkley

Eros leans over the rail of heaven and pegs away at the heart-bound Cophetuas of Now as they dictate to the pretty little "Beggar Maids"

ONCE, a very long while ago (the old minstrels who sang of it don't tell when), down in Africa, in the burning desert, or in the close, gorgeous, choking jungle somewhere, was a great King! And they called him Cophetua.

And he was a wise and gentle King, and his people loved him much, but he was slipping out of his youth and hadn't ever loved any woman—and he wouldn't, he said. And great wailing went up from the dark people because they had no Queen.

The Maids in his vast, rich court danced for him and sang to him in the cold of the Afrion night, and made slow, sweet eyes at him in the fainting noon-heat—but his eyes always looked past them to something that danced beyond in the heat-quiver, and he strode away from their golden arms sometimes, and sometimes he went to sleep under their waving in the dance. And so it was!

And the God Love, of the bandaged eyes, heard him say he wouldn't!

So one day it came that the King stood in his gateway, flashing in the sun, and a troop of beggars wound miserably by, crying their desolate cry; and the King's eyes filled and he clutched his purse in his hand and flung it swiftly out to them, and it fell in a heap. And they ran to it like bees, their rags fluttering wildly, and with them scrambled a beggar girl. And the King saw her. And then the Bandaged-Eyed God leaned over the rail of heaven and let fly!

And when the King called her back his hand was crumpled over his heart. And he took her straight into his arms—her rags into his glitter and silk.

After that the heat of many days rang with the high monotone of fiercely rejoicing voices, and the thrum of fest, and the drumming of stretched, beaten skins, and the singing and feasting. And Cophetua drew his beggar maid up to his throne in her silk and gems in the middle time of the hot, drumming, feasting days—and called her aloud his Queen.

And Cophetua and his golden-eyed Queen ruled that country and were happy until they died. And their people carved their shapes in the vast red stone, with their hands clasped and their faces smiling.

That's one of those "Once upon a time" stories, and that was ages and ages and ages ago—but Eros still leans over the rail of heaven and pegs away at the rich and heart-bound Cophetuas of Now, while they dictate to the pretty little "Beggar-maids" with the flying white fingers and the wholesome, pretty faces and fresh, white collars.

Up in the Air

By Wex Jones

EVER since the Wrights came back from Europe everybody has been up in the air.

Balloons have gone out of fashion altogether, and are now only used by scientists who think they can ascend high enough to whistle to Mars. The upper air is dotted with these balloons, although just what effect the experimenters hope to produce on the Martians is not clear.

What would we do if the people on Jupiter, say, went up in balloons and kept shooting off guns at us till we couldn't sleep quietly? What do we care about Mars or Jupiter, anyway? Lots of Bostonians have never bothered to visit Charlestown or City Point or Chelsea, so it's hardly reasonable to expect them to get excited over a place some 500,000 years from the Gilded Dome.

So the balloon is now regarded as archaic as the railroad or a steamship line. Aeroplanes now do everything in the way of traffic.

Bought a nifty touring flyer to-day. It's a beauty; fifty cylinders, and 250 miles an hour easy. Took her out for a trial spin and handled it very successfully. Ran into a flock of wild geese and broke the air-shield. These geese are about the only birds left that stick to flying. Since the air got filled with traffic all the other birds have taken to the ground, and most of them have no more wings now than an ostrich.

It appears that the flying fish has also lost its power of flight through disuse. It prefers to take a chance with a snapper below the surface than be bumped by the trans-oceanic flyers.

Had a narrow escape from a serious accident to-day. A bunch of children were playing around the corner of a large cloud, and I had no time to steer clear of them, so I had to throw my tourine fly right into the cloud to save their lives. Luckily, it was not very dense, so I suffered only a few minor injuries.

Poor children should not be allowed to play in the clouds. It is almost impossible to avoid them, since they are only provided with low-power wings and cannot fly quickly enough to get out of the way. No child should be allowed outside the balloon playgrounds unless wearing at least 500-horsepower wings. Never be an infant with a 2-h. p. set to dodge a fast flyer.

Took out my new cooling flyer to-day. She's a bird (that's an obsolete comparison, but the word hangs on as slang, and I reeled off 550 miles the second hour. Hit a child near a crowded balloon tenement, and there were cries of "Lynch him!" "Drop the speeder!" They did drop one poor fellow the other day, and I didn't want to be executed yet a while, so I let out a few links, and after an exciting flight from the motordyer cops I finally shook off the pursuers by shooting around the end of a fog over Greenland.

It is said that Police Commissioner O'Meara is going to put on a lot of police albatrosses, trained to fly in the faces of speeders. I don't think they'll do much with racing cars, however.

The Journal of a Neglected Wife

By MABEL HERBERT URNER

November 9th.

I SPEND hours lately planning meetings with her.

Night after night I lie awake picturing what such an encounter would be like.

Sometimes I think of meeting her on the street with him. What would he do?

Would he stare at me and simply pass on, or would he stop, and speak? Would he introduce her—and how?

Never in all these years have I seen my husband with another woman. Could I pass on proudly serene, or would I break down in some emotional way?

Again and again I picture scenes—ghastly scenes—in which I go to her apartment, and there confront them both.

I have pictured him, white and stern, stepping to her side and saying: "Why have you come here? This is the woman I have—I shall never leave her."

Again, I have pictured him starting to come toward me, when he saw me at the door. And then she would come between us, thrusting herself in his arms—keeping him from me.

The scenes are always different, but the setting is the same. I see in always the same—a luxuriously furnished room with shaded lights and burning gas-logs. I always picture her there in a soft white house-gown, with her sister sitting and reading aloud or bending over her, talking tenderly, earnestly.

Is her apartment anything like I picture it? The whole atmosphere of the room and many of its details seem so distinct.

How strange such imaginings are!

And why do I always think of her as frail and delicate? Is it because I feel that is how her appeal to Horace would be strongest? Will I ever meet her? And will it be in any of these ways?

I know that with all my heart I hope such meeting will never occur; it would only increase my suffering and degradation a hundred-fold. And yet I am always planning, always picturing, always living it.

Oh, why must I torture myself so? Why cannot I keep my mind from such things.

CHAPTER IX.

November 10th.

THERE is something so sad about the dying of anything for the last time.

To-day I was packing away Horace's Summer clothes, as I have every Fall for fifteen years, and my heart was sick with fear that it was for the last time—that I would never do that again.

Oh, if I could only be told that it was not for the last time! If fate would let me look into the future, and I could see myself once more putting away those Summer things!

If only I could be sure that next Fall—a year from now—it would still be I who would again fold them away!

November 11th.

TO-DAY this letter from from Edith Carrington:

I have said I was spending the week with you. If Frank telephones from Boston, say that I have just gone out—make any excuse, but make him believe that I am with you.

Whatever you may think—whatever your disapproval may be—you will help me in this now. Life owes me these four days of happiness, and I write that I shall have only memories. The future will hold nothing else.

For myself I would scorn this subterfuge—but I cannot wholly forget my children. Hold any letters that may come in your care. I will come to New York Saturday for a few hours.

What does it mean? "Four days—after that I shall have only memories."

Has she gone away with the man she loves for these four days, that they may have this one glimpse of happiness? And then to separate—to send him from her forever?

Four days alone with the man she loves! Of the moral right or wrong I cannot think just now—I can only think of what those four days will mean, even with the anguish of parting over them.

A year ago I would have recoiled from lending even passive aid to such a thing, but now I have come to know more of life, more of suffering, more of hunger.

If Edith Carrington has the courage to risk that fate for these four days and pay for them afterward, as in some way she must pay, can I presume to say: "It must not be—it is wrong"?

Can I say that I would barter my own soul could it bring me four such days with Horace? There is no price I would not pay to have again even for that short time the same love and tenderness and intimacy that we once had.

And Edith Carrington never had it. From the beginning her marriage was a ghastly thing. How, then, can I judge her for fiercely asserting her right to these four days?

(To be Continued in Sunday's BOSTON AMERICAN.)

The Manicure Lady

She Reads "Jekyll and Hyde" by a Man With a Swede Name

"I WAS reading a story last night, George," said the Manicure Lady, as I had my blood curdling. It was about a gent that was one thing in the daytime and another thing at night. The name of the story was "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." It was wrote by some man with a Swede name, Josephson, or Robertson, or something like that."

"I'll say you mean," said the Head Barber. "was wrote by Robert Sterve Lewisohn. I think he was some relation to the man that used to win all the coin on the races."

"Well, anyway," said the Manicure Lady, "it was sure a harrowing story. There was a fine looking young doctor named Jekyll, and he had a swell practice. He used to connect with all kinds of the kale, and nobody, not even the folks in the next flat, had anything on him.

"One night when he was supposed to be sound asleep, he changed into an awful fiend, and went out into the darkest streets of the city looking for somebody to kill. The first thing that happened to come along was a nice old man, and this terrible Mister Hyde, which was the Doc's other name, knocks him down with a heavy cane, and puts the boots to him."

"I do not think you ought to read that kind of fairy stories," said the Head Barber. "They ain't good for growing girls."

"That's very unkind of you, George," said the Manicure Lady, "I know as well as you do that I am a little overweight, though my figure is more plump than obese, but you ain't got a right to call me a growing girl. I lost two pounds last week, doing the housework."

"But, what I was going to say, George, was that when I read this story I couldn't help thinking how true it was to Nature, especially Nature in Boston. I know lots of gents which comes in here to have their nails did, and I would like to bet that when they are in their own homes they are as gentle as doves and as upright as fence posts. The minute that they flop their right foot in the soap suds, the left fin begins to get busy with my slender fingers.

"I can't pull away very well, not being an athlete, and having to tend to my work besides, so I have to let them get away with the rough stuff.

"And on the patter that they put across the table. 'I love my wife, but oh, you kid!' 'Honest, little girlie, I am strong for you!' 'Without thee life would be a barren waste; 'I never knew true love till I looked into those eyes.'

"Honest to goodness, George, it would pay us Manicure Ladies to get busy and learn before looking for titles, even if he has to get his nails did, while he severe strain on a author.

"Now, for instance, you remember that old goat that was in last evening just as the rain was coming over the dreary tenements. He looked like the man that passes the hat around at the little old white church where he was once baptized. What do you think I get from him?

"Well," said the Manicure Lady, "he looks at me kind of dreamy and says, 'What then wed?'

"Why didn't you soak him?" asked the Head Barber.

"What! fight after a proposal?" demanded the Manicure Lady.

And the Manicure Lady meets many a Jekyll and Hyde every day.

Young-Man-Afraid-of-His-Wife

He Decides That Minnehaha Is Neither a "Sturdy Oak" Nor a "Clinging Vine"

By Arthur Farland

"SAY, sport," began the "L" guard as Young-Man-Afraid-of-His-Wife entered the car, "do you know about this sturdy vine and clingin' oak proposition?"

"Hold on, there, Luther Burbank, you're grafting the wrong adjectives on to those nouns. I guess you mean sturdy oak and clinging vine. What do you want to know for—going to be a farmer or do you take me for one?"

"Nothin' like that," said the guard. "Didn't you see in the papers about the sky pilot who started a primary in his church to see how the lads voted as to what'd be about the ready in the marriage line? Well, I didn't see it, but the Party did. She has it all scissored out and when I blows up to the flat.

"'William,' says the Kidz, after I reads the dope, 'how do I stand with you? Am I a "sturdy oak" or am I a "clinging vine?"' Say, sport, that was easy for Willie. 'Kiddo,' says I, 'you're a bapsified mixture of both. Just enough of the vine and plenty of the oak stuff.'

And the Party Sighed a Lot

"After ladlin' out the hot soup to that fashion I thought I was all through with the mama talk an' we was free to take a whirl at the nickelettes. Nothin' like that, though. 'William,' gurgles the Party, breakin' out in a fresh spout, 'am I pretty an' neat, an' sweet tempered?' 'Kno're all there, kid,' says Hetty Willie, the 'L' guard. 'Am I—er—I—er—' 'Say, sport, that was easy for Willie. 'Kiddo,' says I, 'you're a bapsified mixture of both. Just enough of the vine and plenty of the oak stuff.'

And the Party Sighed a Lot

"After ladlin' out the hot soup to that fashion I thought I was all through with the mama talk an' we was free to take a whirl at the nickelettes. Nothin' like that, though. 'William,' gurgles the Party, breakin' out in a fresh spout, 'am I pretty, an' neat, an' sweet tempered?' 'Kno're all there, kid,' says Hetty Willie, the 'L' guard. 'Am I—er—I—er—' 'Say, sport, that was easy for Willie. 'Kiddo,' says I, 'you're a bapsified mixture of both. Just enough of the vine and plenty of the oak stuff.'

And Minnehaha doesn't look either the "clinging vine" or the "sturdy oak" part; she looks like a cactus plant

ANSWER TO THE SKIRT

You ask me which I fall for,
A oak or clinging vine,
And so's to put you wise, kid,
I've doped you out this rhyme:
Don't be the kind of oak tree
To soak me on the pate,
When I, with vinelike movements,
Come smiling homewards late.
But tree or vine, I want you.
As I have always did,
Some husbands love their wives (they say).
But OH—YOU—KID!

"I guess that wasn't goin' some, eh, sport?" queried the guard, proudly, as Young-Man-Afraid-of-His-Wife sat through it all without batting an eyelash.

"I should say that it was going twenty-six miles and three hundred and eighty-five yards," admitted Young-Man-Afraid-of-His-Wife. "You had more kick than your Uncle John in the discussion of the oak and vine proposition."

"Minnehaha brought it up the other evening as the tapes and rammed a lot of her own views down my throat. The Rev. Mr. Vaughn need not tell us he is from Chicago, she wound up, as his questions alone prove that unhappy fact. In a gentle voice I asked for light on the subject. Because, forsooth, I'm the master, I'm the head of the house, I'm the man, I'm the rule of this particular ark, and you give know that.' I admitted that I did. I also gave her the same newspaper account that the pastor asks who ought to carry the pocketbook—the husband, or wife? Surely he isn't a married man if he doesn't know the answer to that question, I replied, and the discussion ended right there.

"Say," asked Billy in a confidential whisper, "on the level, now, which is the madam, a sturdy oak or a clingin' vine?"

"Neither," breathed back Young-Man-Afraid-of-His-Wife. "If you ask me, she's a cactus plant!"

When Hope of Pleasure Is Gone—What Then?

Why, Then, Get Some Other Hope. Begin Another and a Better Battle

Copyright, 1909, by American-Journal-Examiner

We publish to-day one of the most interesting letters that has ever come to this office. The man who writes it says, "I would be glad to know just what you think of a man whose condition is such that he has abandoned hope of pleasure in this life."

He signs his name Cynicus, and this is the story that he gives of his own career and disappointments:

There are times in the lives of all men when they begin to think seriously of what they have accomplished, what they are accomplishing and what they may accomplish, for the good or bad of others or for themselves. Conscience reminds us that we are here for but a little while.

Youth fights off this knowledge as long as possible, but sooner or later we are bound to admit the truth and give it consideration. We have had innumerable opportunities. How did we use them? Are we better for them? Are we worse? Have we deliberately deceived ourselves?

Air castles, hopes of youth, have been shattered one by one, and man reaches the age when the frost begins to gather around his ears. Time marches relentlessly on. Ambition is checked, if not altogether stilled. It is grind, grind, grind for daily subsistence for those who are dependent upon him and for himself. He cannot banish memory of wasted opportunities and he is yet too young to live altogether in the past. What is his state of mind? Chaos! He does not like to be alone. His thoughts are unhealthful, morbid. Hope is vanished and all the little plans made in his household have slight interest for him.

He thinks to himself, Of what use is it all? Selfish, perhaps, but true, nevertheless. If he gets tired and ceases to work he is reproached by those near him for not producing the wherewithal for their pleasure and subsistence. His means will not permit him to "lay by" for his old age. He fears the day when he can no longer work and he will be a burden upon some one.

Intuition tells him that the ones he has slaved for will some day look upon him as a burden. He has tried successively to be a good son, a good husband and a good father, but is haunted with the feeling that he is looked upon as "the provider" rather than "the sacrificer."

Yet he is a slave and he cannot flee it all. He would not do so if he could. Duty has ever been his watchword and he will do it to the end.

He feels that he has seen enough of this world. He wonders why man is put here. He knows his is not an isolated case.

That letter will awaken a mournful echo in a good many minds, for in this rushing, crowded world many are tired and discouraged. Hard work seems to bring small results and still less gratitude. We are all taught as children to look forward to the White House and the Presidency. And the majority of us end by looking forward rather gloomily to the first of the month and its invoice of bills to be paid.

Life gets dull as the years go by. The birds that used to delight and inspire your soul now simply wake you up too early in the morning. The ambitions that once made you tremble with hope are beyond your reach, or you have grown to know how ridiculous they were, and how little they amount to in a world in which man is a passing atom and in a universe in which the earth itself is a little snowflake.

The whole of life, as our reader says, is rather discouraging, "when the frost begins to gather around the ears."

The intelligent, educated man who has become cynical is to be pitied.

It is not possible to straighten him out with trivial advice made up of platitude and "bromides." He knows as much about his duty as anyone, and a good deal more. Neither editor, clergyman nor good, wise, old relative can pat him on the back and make him forget his troubles with a few trite words.

To the man who writes this letter it isn't easy to say anything, but we may perhaps say this much:

You have the intelligence to realize that life is a dull, hard fight that gets more and more dull as time passes. You ought also to realize that a hard fight is worthy of a good man. And you ought to realize that it is interesting, even when the frost begins to gather around the ears; to realize that you, after all, depend on yourself; that you are taking care of some other human beings and in a small way playing the part of a real providence and actually, in the slang of the day, "delivering the goods."

And you ought also to find some comfort in cold, abstract study of this interesting world, in the great inconceivable cosmic machine of which you are a part. Look at the great sun rolling down in the west. That marvellous shining star is your guide; your physical father and mother. It lighted this earth in its early turnings millions of years ago. It will still light up this earth, your home, millions of years from now. AND EVERY GOOD PIECE OF WORK THAT YOU DO TO-DAY WILL STILL COUNT AND BE OF VALUE IN THOSE FUTURE MILLIONS OF YEARS. This little earth, with its thin crust of soil and its forests beneath which we human insects move like the ants in the moss, is developing a good civilization, a race in which there will be spiritual life and real happiness even for the man with frosty hair. Everything that civilization is to be we human beings of to-day AND OF YESTERDAY AND OF TO-MORROW MUST PRODUCE. It is a long fight to get anything done. But you are living IN ETERNITY. Your life is a speck in time that never began and will never end. Nothing is in very much of a hurry in eternity, and we must not be in too much of a hurry. Do what you can, enjoy the fight, keep plugging along in that tiresome marathon that begins in the cradle and ends in the graveyard, having the satisfaction of saying to yourself, "At least I am still running; I haven't sat down or lain down or given up."

You feel that you are working for those who don't appreciate it. Well, your mother worked for you, suffered to bear you as you were never suffer, and took the most tender care of you, NOT EVEN ASKING FOR THANKS OR ANY REWARD.

You ask, "Of what use is it all?" Nobody can answer your question. But this is certain: To struggle and do your duty is, at least, more useful THAN TO GIVE UP AND SHIRK.

You may take your choice of two roads—be a worker—patient, persistent, determined, fighting against the conditions that are so mysterious and discouraging, or be a shirker, a quitter. Lie down, pity yourself and give up.

The fight that you are making is not unimportant. It is just as big a fight as the greatest that was ever made by a great soldier. A million years from now, Caesar and his red shirt galloping across the plains of Gaul will look no bigger than you do in your white shirt traveling up and down in the public street cars, getting out of bed before you want to, going to bed tired and fighting to keep food in the stomachs of others.

Nobody can tell what it is all for, but here we are, and on we go through space with our big sun warming our little planet. And the laws that are sent to us here govern us, and the good instincts put within us tell us to struggle along and do the best we can.

It is not much fun being a man, but it's better than being a turtle. Be glad that you are a man and not a turtle.

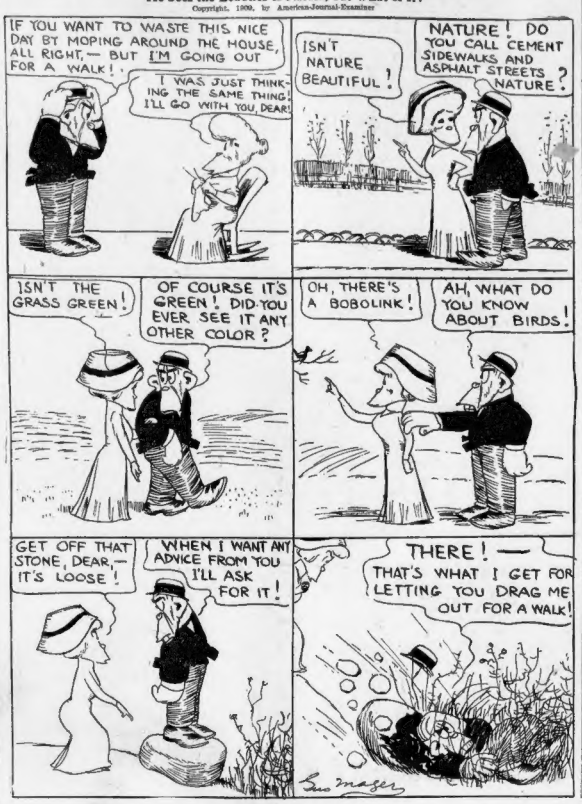
He Sees the Beauties of Nature, but What of It?

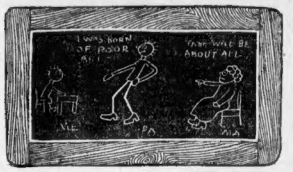
Copyright, 1909, by American-Journal-Examiner



IF YOU WANT TO WASTE THIS NICE DAY BY MOPING AROUND THE HOUSE, ALL RIGHT,— BUT I'M GOING OUT FOR A WALK!
I WAS JUST THINKING THE SAME THING. I'LL GO WITH YOU, DEAR!
ISN'T NATURE BEAUTIFUL!
NATURE! DO YOU CALL CEMENT SIDEWALKS AND ASPHALT STREETS NATURE?
ISN'T THE GRASS GREEN!
OF COURSE IT'S GREEN! DID YOU EVER SEE IT ANY OTHER COLOR?
OH, THERE'S A BOBOLINK!
AH, WHAT DO YOU KNOW ABOUT BIRDS.
GET OFF THAT STONE, DEAR,— IT'S LOOSE!
WHEN I WANT ANY ADVICE FROM YOU I'LL ASK FOR IT!
THERE!— THAT'S WHAT I GET FOR LETTING YOU DRAG ME OUT FOR A WALK!

Little Bobbie's Pa

By William F. Kirk



WEN Pa caim hoam last nite I was trying to rite sumthing for the teecher & I was crying a littel bee-kaus I cuddent git started. The teecher asked me to rite sum essays on the Lives of Grate Men, & sed I shud rite one (1) every day until she told me to quit.

This is a big assign-ment, sed Pa. Wat have you did at skool that maiks the teecher so jarrd. Then I beegan to cry sum moar.

Now, see here, sed Ma to Pa, if you mail littel Bobbie cry any moar I will order you out of the room and help him myself. What do you mean by hurting the feelings of our littel son? Can't you see that he feels bad enuff now.

I dident meen to hurt his feelings, sed Pa. Only wen my skool days was going on, & I got a extra hard job, my father used to spank me wen I got hoam, bee-kaus he knew I had ben a bad boy. Dount cry any moar, Bobbie, sed Pa to me. We will git together & git this eesay rote all rite. Let me see, now, sed Pa. As long as yure teecher did not naim the grate men of wich you shud rite, we naim as well start in with me. I was born of poor, but honest parents, sed Pa.

That will be about all for you, sed Ma. Why dount you help Bobbie rite about General Washington. So this is what Pa tosld me to rite:

General Washington, sed Pa, otherwise known as the Father of his country, was a favorite son of Fortune. With everything in his advantage, sed Pa, he went along & did what many others could have did even better. I do not hesitate to say, Pa sed, that had I been born about his time, there wud have been littel sed about him.

In person, sed Pa, he was tall & hansum, with a courtly manner & a iron constitushun. Born of arte-tokratik parents, he never forgot that fack, in wich respeck, Pa sed, he differed from me, as I am nothing if not a good mixer.

Wen a young man, sed Pa, he took up sur-veying, & met with such marked soksess that he beecaim, in time, as rich as most sur-veyors ever gits. At this time, a war brook out between the Injuns & the British Colonists. The Injuns was being encouraged by the French, & the British Col-onists sent a General naimed Braddock to beat the Injuns. General Washington, wich was not a General at that time, was asked by Mister Braddock, wich was a General, to act as a scout, & tany prepared to set out.

On the morning on which tday was to start on, sed Pa, tday beegan to dress. Mister Braddock put on his red uniform, & Washington put on sum overalls wich was the saim color as the trees. Washington toald Mister Braddock that bim & his men shud ware a different color than red, & Mister Braddock sed to Washington, I jolly well preferr red, you know. In fack, you know, sed Mister Braddock, red is the color that I shall jolly well wear, you know.

Littel moar of that famous fite reemains to be toald, sed Pa. The Injuns caim out of thare shells & every place they saw a red coat they sent a arrow, wich was jolly well dis-tressing for Mister Braddock & his frends, Pa sed. Mister Washington bid beehind a tree, & wen the fite was over he beat it back to the dear old Potomac. This teaches us, sed Pa, the danger of ever dressing. Then Pa looked at Ma, wich was reddy to go to the show & had on her new hat & new dress.

I might go on, Bobbie, sed Pa, & tell you of that awful winter at Valley Forge, ware the American troops walked up and down in the snow without thare overshoes, & I mite tell you how Washington went hungry that his men mite eat, jest as Napoleon dident at the retreat from Moscow, but pure mother is reddy for the theater & I must away. In ending pure essay, say Washington was first in war, first in peace & first in the morning papers, not unlike the grate Mister Roosvelt.

Then Pa & Ma went to the show.

LETTERS FROM AMERICAN READERS

THE ARMENIAN MARTYRS

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

While I feel greatly indebted to you for the most humane sentiment and practical suggestions voiced in your editorial of May 12, entitled "America's Duty to Armenia," allow me to call your attention to an historical error noted in the following sentence:

"In the land where the crucified Saviour lived, and died upon the cross, thousands upon thousands who were indoctrined by the Christian missionaries of other lands to embrace His teachings are daily meeting with death in its most terrible form."

Christianity is not an imported religion in Armenia. It is a local product, the seeds of which were sown by the disciples of Christ—Thaddeus and Bartholomew. Tradition tells us that Christ himself responded with Abkar, a contemporary king of Armenia.

The first Christian church was inaugurated as early as 34 A. D., and it has survived through perpetual struggle, strife and storm ever since.

The martyrdom of its people to-day is an everlasting affront to the face of the impotent powers of Christian Europe (and may I say America also), whose warships, like empty prides, are cruising over the dead bodies of the innocent women and children about Levant.

EDWARD YERAN.

Cambridge.

TIME FOR IMMEDIATE ACTION

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Your editorial, "America's Duty to Armenia Calls for Immediate Action," will be read by all REAL Christian Americans with great pleasure, and I am sure it will make its way to their hearts. For centuries the Armenians as a Christian nation have upheld their Christianity boldly and sacrificed their lives freely, saying that some day a Christian power, or powers, would step in and stop it. But none of them has done a thing. They have just said a "few words," and we know "just a few words" would not change the Turks unless to make them more barbarous towards the poor, unprotected Christians. Now the eyes of the Christian world are fixed on good old America, expecting it to be a Good Samaritan to Armenia—not with "just a few words," but by immediate action. It is just the time for the American people to show their faith and do their duty, and Heaven will reward them.
